

ISO 9001 Quality Objectives–SMART

- Specific – The objectives should be clear enough and specific so that everyone understands and interprets them in the same way.
- Measurable – An objective should be quantifiable and you should be able to track performance to see if you have or have not achieved the desired outcome.
- Attainable – An objective should be “doable” and within your organizations reach to achieve them reasonably.
- Relevant –Objectives should be realistic, relevant and consistent with your quality management policy.
- Time-based – An objective should be quantifiable and have a time frame associated with it.
